

BIOL109 : General Biology I

Introduction of biological principles of chemical and cellular organization, metabolism and energy processing, cellular reproduction, genetics, evolution and microbes. Recommended for science majors or students requiring two semesters of biological science. General Biology I (BIOL109) and Biology of Our World (BIOL103) are not equivalent or sequential courses. Students may use only one of these introductory courses to meet the lab science requirement. Meets General Education requirement for Science.

Credits 4

Lecture Hours 3

Lab/Clinical/Field Study Hours 3

Prerequisites

ENGLO80 and MATH074 or MATH099 with grade of C or better or Placement test score or SAT score.