

CISM160 : Systems Analysis and Design

Investigation of information systems with respect to their existence and identification and development of needed informational improvements within an organization. Recommended methods and procedures considering computer involvement are reviewed, designed and implemented using the case-study approach.

Credits 3

Lecture Hours 3

Lab/Clinical/Field Study Hours 0

Prerequisites

one of the following: CISM135, CISM154 or CISM174