

CISM247 : Management Information Systems

Introduces the concept of information as a resource in business and the integration and management of various information resources in a business organization, including management information systems, decision support systems, telecommunications, data management and office automation. Analysis of the manager's role in information system design and the management of information system departments.

Credits 3

Lecture Hours 3

Lab/Clinical/Field Study Hours 0

Prerequisites

BUSN222 and CISM125